DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 5 and 7 are objected to because of the following informalities:
 - a. Claim 5, line 3, "movable" should read --movably--;
 - b. Claims 5 and 7, "said other frame member" lacks antecedent basis;
 - c. Claim 7, line 3, "adjustable" should read --adjustably--. Appropriate correction is required.
2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

 - d. Claims 1-4, 7, 10-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stearns in view of Miller. Stearns discloses (fig. 1) a frame formed from two frame sections hinged together (112,123;fig. 1); a u-shaped swing portion (120) movably attached to one frame section having a seat (121); and a pair of arms (129). Stearns does not disclose the frame being folding, or a-shaped. Miller teaches a foldable frame (fig. 7). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Stearns in view of the teaching of Miller such that a frame can be folded to provide portability. Regarding the shape, a change in the shape of a prior art device is a design consideration within the skill of the art. In re Dailey, 357 F.2d 669, 149 USPQ 47 (CCPA 1966). Regarding the language "said hinged folding frame sections being foldable on said hinge from a folded storage position to an open operative position", "whereby a person sitting in said generally u-shaped swing portion seat and gripping and moving said handles can move said generally u-shaped swing portion and person sitting therein relative to said A-frame to thereby exercise the person's arms and upper body" has not been given patentable weight because the recitation is purely functional in nature and does not recite any structure. As to claim 2, the device includes a leg exerciser (130) attached to the frame. As to claim 3, the hinged sections have a lock (fig. 5b). As to claim 4, Stearns does not disclose an adjustable back. Miller teaches an adjustable back (fig. 1). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Stearns in view of the teaching of Miller that such a seat back can provide adjustability to a user while exercising. As to claim 12, Miller teaches a foot-supporting member mounted on the swing portion (fig. 1). As to claim 7, the leg exerciser is an adjustable bar (fig. 20) attached to the frame. Regarding the language "allowing said feet to be placed thereon while a person is seated in said seat and to push said u-shaped member, seat and person to exercise said legs" has not been given patentable weight because the recitation is purely functional in nature and does not recite any structure. As to claim 10, see the paragraph for claim 1. As to claim 11, the seat of Stearns has a back supporting member (fig. 1). As to claims 13, see the paragraph for claim 7.

e. Claims 5, 6, 8-9, 14-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stearns and Miller as applied to claims 1 and 13 above, and further in view of Lin. As to claim 5, Stearns and Miller disclose all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the limitations in claim 5. Thus, Lin teaches the swing portion movably attached to one frame section and hinged to one frame section (fig. 2). As to claims 6, 9 and 15, Miller teaches a foot-supporting member mounted on the swing portion (fig. 1) that is capable of being removed. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to in view of Miller such that a foot support is capable of being mounted on a detachably mounted on a swing portion. As to claims 8 and 14, Stearns and Miller disclose all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the arms being adjustable. Lin teaches adjustable arms. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Stearns in view of the teaching of Lin that such arms be can be adjusted for a variety of different sized users.
